

Academic Member and Ambassador
Communication Institute of Greece

Stéphanie De Munter
PhD Student
University of Antwerp
Belgium

Stéphanie De Munter

Stéphanie De Munter is a PhD candidate at the University of Antwerp in political communication with particular interests in political party and candidate communication and the link to citizen and voter engagement. Recently, she has published a paper called ‘To tweet or not to tweet: Analyzing social media behavior of Belgian politicians in the 2014 elections’ where the impact of Twitter on preferential votes was researched. She holds a master degree communication sciences. Next to her PhD research she is a senior account manager for Cision in Belgium.

Academic Member and Ambassador
Communication Institute of Greece

