

Mrs Anna Podara

Journalist &

PhD cand.,

Aristotle University of Thessaloniki,

Greece

Mrs Anna Podara

Anna Podara is a Greek journalist and documentary film maker, working for Greek TV Industry since 2004. Following a certification in Adult Education from Greek Ministry of Education, the last eight years she has also been teaching as an adult educator in School of Journalists (Vocational Training Institute of Greece). She holds a Master in Journalism and Mass Media from School of Journalism, Aristotle University of Thessaloniki. In 2013 she received scholarship for her Master Studies in New Media and she graduated with honors. Her Master Thesis was the web documentary lampsakos.com which is the first web documentary in Greece. She is currently a PhD candidate/researcher in School of Journalism and Mass Media of Aristotle University of Thessaloniki. Her research interests include the field of Television 3.0 and the audiovisual consumption practices of post-millennials. She has presented papers in international conferences and has published one paper about young adults in scientific journal. Additionally, her work is included in the conference proceedings “50 years of Greek TV” which were published in 2018.

