

Dr Romeo K. Teneqexhi
Director
Distance Education Center
Polytechnic University of Tirana
Tirana, Albania

Romeo K. Teneqexhi

Romeo Teneqexhi is a pedagogue of Basic Circuit Theory at the Polytechnic University of Tirana. He received a doctorate in optical reading technologies from the Polytechnic University of Tirana. His research interests include digital media, computer programming, and online learning. Recent publications concern a new vision of teaching in universities using hi technologies and the Internet.

He currently teaches “Basic Circuit Theory” and “Electrotechnic” at the Polytechnic University of Tirana. Computer programming is his hobby. He has developed many computer application, especially in the teaching and assessment area. He works in Polytechnic University of Tirana since 1988 when finished standings at Electrical Faculty and for the moment is director of Distance Education Center in Polytechnic University of Tirana. He has developed and proposes to implement in universities a new system for teaching using Transparent Interactive Screen-Board simulator.

