The Communication Institute of Greece is an International Association, established to promote research, education and facilitate communication among academics and people interested by it, from all around the world. It was established in 2003 in France and in 2013 in Greece as an independent association of academics, researchers and professionals who consider that education and intercultural communication can ameliorate our lives: educate ourselves is what we need to develop in a fruitful environment. Academics, Professionals and even everyday People can contribute significantly to the quality of "education". Educate, communicate, exchange, meet new cultures, create, collaborate (...) we can all have a part to create a better environment to live in!

The quality of education can promote, among others, intercultural communication and the academic community is the leader of education's content and quality. Academics, researchers, PhD students or people interested to create links with the academic community around the world, are more than welcome to become members of the Institute (NB. needs boards' approval).
