Dr Jessica Kong

Dr Jessica Kong obtained her PhD in Media and Communications at the London School of Economics (LSE), whose research explores the communicative power of sound in social movements. Besides this, Dr Kong is passionate in Higher Education. She holds the position of Study Adviser at LSE LIFE, offering one-to-one academic and pastoral support to undergraduate and master's students. Aside from general academic support, Dr Kong is an experienced teacher within the Social Science discipline. She was involved in teaching courses such as Social Psychology, Global Politics of Protest and Change, Mediated Activism and Dissertation Study Skills in Communication. Outside the academic setting, Dr Kong is an active pianist, who delivers concerts in care homes, hospitals, and a variety of community settings in London.
