The conference: 26-29 September 2022*

After the organization of ten (10) successful Annual International Conferences (look at Previous Conferences of COMinG), the 7th International Conference on Communication and Management (ICCM2022), provides an opportunity for academics, researchers, students and professionals from various fields, with cross-disciplinary interests, to discuss the future directives and innovations in Communication and Management.

Our main priority is your health security and this is why this year's conference is taking place remotely. Our experience from last year's successful remote format proves that exchange and knowledge sharing can take place even in remote mode.

Presenters can either propose a paper presentation, a poster, a round table discussion, a workshop, etc. Please find here all the different formats you can propose. For paper presentations, please submit your abstract by email to registration@coming.gr, in a .doc file using the Abstract template. Decisions are reached within 2 weeks after the abstract submission. The deadline to register and to submit full papers will be specified in your acceptance letter.
